TUESDAY, DECEMBER 11.

The total official vote of the United States is as follows: Harrison, 5,239,009; Cleveland, 5,334,034; Fisk (pro.) 245,705; Streeter (labor), 141,002—a total of 10,-690,650.

It is said that Mr. Whitney has had every newspaper reference to him since he became secretary of the navy, clipped out and pasted in a scrap book. The scrap book now contains forty odd volumes

Judge rubs some salt in the wounds of Mr. Cleveland by picturing him as an elephant, one eye gone, his body full of wounds, and unable to move while Governor Hill, with the nimbleness of a cat and the humor of a clown, dances in front of the defeated and wounded president, saying, "You will never be able to run again, old fellow. I'll do all the running that is necessary myself, in '92." The cartoon, however galling it may be to the administration, is very prophetic.

He (General Harrison) has one advantage in this matter (of selecting a cabinet) that was not possessed by his predecessor, for his term of service at Washington gave him an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the leaders of the republican organization, and he is thus very much better able than Mr. Cleveland was to judge of how different men would pull together in shaping the policy of an administration.—Boston Herald, (dem.)

That is very true, and is quite sensible for a democratic paper. Mr. Cleveland's cabinet has been no help to him. They have been in another way than commanding the respect of the country. It seems from pretty fair democratic authority that Cleveland has had to run the government pretty much alone on account of the weakness of his cabinet.

The other day the Nashville American, made the remark that northern men and northern capital have had nothing to do in developing the resources of the south. But the Chattanooga Times lays aside its partisanship for a few moments and replies:—"Such talk is stupid, false and mischievous to the last degree. The bonds and stocks of our railroads, furnaces and manufacturing corporations represent money paid for them by northern investors, and that money is the foundation of all our great enterprises. We want more northern money, skill and experience, and we shall get less of them if we tell those who own and control these essentials that their millions and exertions in the past are more bagatelle not worth mentioning."

Professor Holden, of the Lick observatory, has issued in pamphlet form some suggestions to observers of the solar eclipse which is to occur next New Year's Day. A map accompanies the monograph, partially showing the limits within which the obscuration will be total. These include but a small part of the United States. On American soil the phenomenon will be witnessed to advantage only in California, Nevada and some of the territories. The Lick observatory, however, could not be more eligibly situated for studying this celestial spectacle, which fact, together with the splendid equipment of that institution, will excite earnest hopes that General Greely will favor California with clear skies on the opening day of January. In New York the eclipse will begin at sunset, and will not attract any attention.

The conditions attached by G. V. Williamson, the Philadelphia philanthropist, to his endowment of the Mechanical school are sensible and practical, as well as generous. He directs that especial care should be taken in the choice of a location, so as to secure a good drainage, etc., the buildings must be as nearly fire-proof as possible, but must be plain, "all palatial structures, expensive materials and elaborate ornamentation or decorations" being avoided in order that scholars may not "by reason of luxurious or expensive accommodations and surroundings acquire tastes or habits which may unfit them for their place in life. Boys may be admitted between twelve and eighteen, and must be indentured for three years. Board, lodging and clothing are to be free as well as education. No sectarian proselytizing is to be allowed, but the moral and religious training of the scholars is to be carefully watched, especially with a view to impress upon the boys the importance of truth. Mr. Williamson's first gift has already been made of securities aggregating in market value very nearly $2,-000,000.

The tenderness and the beauty of the the following lines will be appreciated by the readers of the Gazette. They were written in the office of the New York Tribune, and are a sad warning to the modern free trade "Excelsiore."

The 4th of March was nearing when a white house statesman took his pen, and while he looked immensely vexed, wrote out a message from the text, Free Trade.

His brow was sad, sick was his smile, like one who gnaws a rat-tail file; and as his message he began he turned him and remarked to Dan, Free Trade.

When Ben's proud vote loomed into view it marked his own dread Waterloo; beyond the Saline river sped, but all the same the message said, Free Trade.

"O give us", Randall cried, "a rest; to yield and kick not that is best"; a sob rose in his manly throat, but still he in the message wrote, Free Trade.

"Don't of yourself construct a fool, O be not like the stubborn mule"—this was Charles Dana's kind advice; the message answered in a trice, Fre Trade.

When congress met and bent its ear, ar at Grover's farewell views to hear; then as the clerk the message read, 'twas found he mainly fiercely said, Free Trade.

Between the lines the man was found torn was his hair, his teeth were ground; still calling to his beaten crowd in accents angry, shrill and loud, Free Trade.

There in the pottage cold and thick, he gave a last vindictive kick, and as he chewed reflection's cud a voice fell like the dullest thud, Free Trade.

A Sad Story.

The child coughed. The mother ran. No remedy was near. Before morning the poor little sufferer was dead. Moral: Always keep Dr. Acker's English Remedy at hand. Prentice & Evanson, druggists.

IN CONGRESS.

The Senate Votes Down Several Amendments to the Tariff Bill.

THE SAMOAN QUESTION COMES UP.

In the House Mr. Holman Wants the Charges of Corruption in the Campaign Ventilated — Butterworth's Proposition to Annex Canada.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—In the Senate Monday Senator Frye (Me.) presented a resolution instructing the Committee on Foreign Relations to inquire into the condition of affairs at Samoa, and to report to the Senate what steps have been taken to maintain the neutrality of the island and what action, if any, is demanded. Senator Frye gave a resume of the recent occurrences at the island, and said that the United States should resist the encroachments of the German and English governments. Senator Gray (Del.) replied that the power to commit the Government to action that would amount to war rested with Congress. The resolution was sent to the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

At 1 o'clock the Senate resumed the consideration of the Tariff bill. Senator Harris (Tenn.) temporarily withdrew his amendment to reduce the duty on structural iron and steel, and Senator McPherson (N. J.) moved to amend the paragraph relating to pig-iron so as to make the rate $6 a ton instead of 8-10 cents a pound. The amendment was rejected after a brief argument by Senators McPherson and Allison (Ia.) by a party vote of 29 to 22.

Several other amendments proposed by Democratic Senators having been rejected, Senator McPherson said that the Democratic party might as well cease its opposition. Referring to the statements in the daily papers that Democratic Senators had been remiss in opposing the substitute and exposing its weak points, he said that the Democratic members of the Finance Committee had had no opportunity to examine the substitute before it was reported to the Senate, and that they were not familiar with it. He believed, however, that if it was adopted that it would bankrupt the country in five years. He moved to postpone consideration of the bill until January 10. Senator Dawes (Mass.) wanted to know if the Senator did not think disaster might come to the country from the surplus in the meantime. Senator McPherson replied that better progress could be made if time was given Senators on his side to become familiar with the bill.

Senator Dawes—Then the Senator's motion is for the purpose of education!

Senator McPherson—Yes; this has been an educational campaign all the way through. [Laughter.]

At the suggestion of Senator Harris, Senator McPherson withdrew his motion for postponement, at which there was some laughter on the Republican side.

Senator Harris renewed his amendment to reduce the duty on beams, girders, joists, angles, etc., from 1 1-10 cents a pound to 6 10 cents. He spoke of Mr. Carnegie's profit on 30,000 tons of steel beams manufactured in one year as over $1,000,000, and described the steel trust in this country as one "hoary with age." How long, he asked, was that trust to exist.

Senator Sherman (O.) desired to state once for all the grounds of his several votes on the bill, because it was neither a matter of pleasure for the Senate, nor a matter of public utility, to waste time in repeating over and over again the same argument on different clauses of the bill. Undoubtedly the Mills bill represented the general sentiment of the Democratic party, while the Senate substitute had been carried before the people of the United States, and there debated, advocated and supported. The one bill looked to a tariff for revenue only; the other tariff for protection. The paragraph proposed to the amendment included a great variety of articles, some of which could be produced in this country for $40 or $50 a ton, while others could not be produced for less than $70 a ton. If it were possible to make a discrimination in the duty on these articles it should be done; but it was impossible without recurring to the ad valorem principle; and experience was not favorable to that principle in imposing duties on iron and steel. The 1 1-10 cents per pound might be a little too high on some articles, but it had been fixed upon by the Finance Committee as a fair average rate. As to Mr. Carnegie's monopoly he (Senator Sherman) knew nothing about it, except that Mr. Carnegie had been the first in this country to apply the continuous process in the manufacture of steel beams. Mr. Carnegie, he presumed, had patents which could not be taken away from him, but they would soon expire. The time was not far distant when all structural forms of steel and iron would be multiplied to an amazing extent and would be produced cheaper and cheaper by the offer of inducements to manufacturers to enter into the business. This was one of the objects of the proposed rate of duty. He thought it better to sustain the Finance Committee in its classification than to change the rates blindly and at hap-hazzard. In regard to trusts, he looked upon them as one of the most dangerous and subtle inventions of man; and was in favor of breaking them up. They were contrary to the spirit of the common law of England; but the only way, he thought, to break them down was by inviting competition. The Senator from Tennessee had made a motion some days since to lay the Senate substitute on the table; and that motion had been rejected by the Senate, the vote being an expression of opinion that the substitute was a better bill than the House bill. The principle having been thus determined, he thought it better to leave the details of the bill to the committee which framed it, unless there was some palpable error which ought to be corrected. He asked his Democratic friends to abide by the judgment of the people on the question. That judgment has been in favor of American industry.

At the conclusion of Senator Sherman's remarks the Senate at 4 p. m. adjourned.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—In the House Monday the most stirring feature of the proceedings was the introduction of a resolution for the investigation of the alleged use of money for purposes of corruption in the recent election.

Among the bills introduced were the following: By Mr. Vandever (Cal.), appropriating $200,000 for the improvement of San Diego harbor; by Mr. Lawler (Ill.), granting a pension of $12 a month to honorably discharged soldiers and sailors who are 60 years of age; by Mr. Howard (Ind.), to punish crimes against the electoral franchise; by Mr. Morse (Mass.), to repeal the Inter-State Commerce law; by Mr. Clardy (Mo.), appropriating $150,-000 for the improvement of St. Louis harbor; by Mr. T. J. Campbell (N. Y.), reviving the grade of Lieutenant-General in the army; by Mr. Snowden (Pa.), for the erection of a building for the geological survey in Washington; by Mr. Dubois (I. T.), for the admission of the State of Idaho; by Mr. McAdoo (N. J.), proposing a constitutional amendment for uniformity as to the day for choosing Presidential electors and forbidding voting for any other officer than representative in Congress on that day.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Chipman (Mich.) authorizing the construction of one steel-armored submerged cruiser armed with heavy rifled guns and pneumatic and torpedo throwers. A speed of not less than twenty-two knots per hour is exacted, and the cruiser must be capable of being submerged not less than seven feet and six inches above the land water line. Four million dollars are appropriated for the cruiser, exclusive of armament.

Mr. Chipman also introduced a bill authorizing the construction of fortifications for New York, Boston, Charleston and San Francisco harbors. It provides for the construction of two submerged turreted torpedo forts, armed with two sixteen inch rifled cannon, two pneumatic torpedo-throwers and six submerged torpedo guns, and with two cable lines of torpedoiums for the protection of New York harbor, to be placed on the shore line in three fathoms of water on the Sandy Hook side and one on the opposite side, one mile from the entrance of New York harbor. It further provides that two similar forts be erected for the protection of the following harbors: Boston, Mass.; Charleston, S. C., and San Francisco, Cal. The sum of $2,000,000 for each port, exclusive of armaments, is appropriated for carrying out the provisions of the act.

Mr. Butterworth (O.) introduced a resolution providing for the annexation of Canada on the payment of the indebtedness of the same by the United States Government and the consent of the Government of Great Britain and of the people of Canada.

Mr. Howard (Ind.) introduced a bill making it unlawful for any person to receive money or other valuable consideration for his vote at any election for Representative in Congress. The payment of money for the vote of any person at such election is also declared unlawful, and any person violating either of these provisions shall, upon conviction, be disfranchised for a period of not less than six nor more than ten years.

Mr. Holman (Ind.) offered for immediate consideration a resolution reciting the charges made in the public prints that money had been used to control Presidential elections, and instructing the Judiciary Committee to investigate the charges and to inquire what legislation might be necessary to preserve the purity of the franchise. Mr. Dingley (Me.) offered an amendment to the resolution inserting the following words: "And also whether officials of the United States have made contributions to such campaign fund. Mr. Holman expressed his willingness to accept the amendment, but Mr. Wilkins (O.) objected to it, and the House having refused unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the resolution it was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The District of Columbia Appropriation bill was taken up in Committee of the Whole. After a brief discussion the bill was laid aside and the committee proceeded to consider the Pension Appropriation bill. The committee having arisen, both bills were passed, and the House at 2:50 adjourned.

THE ALASKAN OUTRAGES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—In response to the resolution of Senator Dawes adopted by the Senate a few days ago, the Secretary of the Interior has sent to the Senate a communication concerning the alleged outrages against the women of Alaska. The Secretary says that the department possesses no information on the subject, nor has its attention been called to it otherwise than through "newspaper reports of uncertain value." The department, says the Secretary, possesses no authority to redress these grievances, even if they do exist. The only agency through which the department can affect the condition of the Alaskan native population is the Bureau of Education, which has superintendency of schools in the Territory.

RIVER AND HARBOR APPROPRIATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Among the Western items in the River and Harbor bill, which was completed by the committee Monday, are the following: Hay Lake channel, Michigan, $100,000; St. Mary's river, Michigan, $500,000; Mississippi river, from Minneapolis to Des Moines rapids, $330,000; from Des Moines rapids to mouth of Illinois river, $90,000; between mouths of the Ohio and Illinois rivers, $200,000; from head of passes to the mouth of the Ohio river, $1,800,000; continuing surveys, $50,000; improving Missouri river, $575,000; Buffalo harbor, $125,-000.

APPOINTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The President has sent to the Senate the following nominations: Perry Belmont, of New York, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Spain; Howard Ellis, of New Jersey, to be Consul of the United States at Rotterdam.

Death of Rear-Admiral Leroy.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Rear-Admiral Leroy died Monday afternoon. He was born in this city in 1818. He entered the navy in 1832 as midshipman; was promoted Lieutenant in 1843, Commander, July 1, 1861, and Captain July 25, 1866. He served on blockade duty during the Mexican war. He also served throughout the war of the rebellion. Leroy was made Rear Admiral April 5, 1874, and placed in command of a Southern squadron. He was subsequently attached to the North Atlantic and European squadrons. He retired in 1880.

Crime of an Infatuated Man.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—A man named John Martin, boarding at the house of B. W. Merrill, on Illinois street, this city, became insanely infatuated with Mrs. Merrill, who repelled him. His attentions became unbearable to the lady, who finally asked him to leave the house. Instead of doing so he procured a revolver and shot her through the head. Martin then shot himself dead. Mrs. Merrill died at 1. p. m.

OFF FOR HAYTI.

United States War-Ships Ready to Sail.

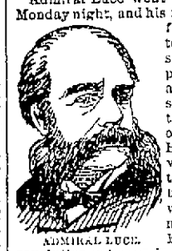
ORDERS TO ADMIRAL LUCE.

He Must Secure the Steamer Haytien Republic by Force If His Request for Her Release Is Refused.

TO BRING HAYTI TO TIME.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—At last orders have been received at the Brooklyn Navy Yard for the United States steamer Galena. She will sail for Hayti this morning. Both officers and men are anxious to get under way. It is not expected that the flag-ship Richmond will be ready for sea before Thursday. The Yantic, too, has to undergo some repairs which will detain her a week or more longer than the Richmond.

Admiral Luce went aboard the Galena Monday night, and his flag was transferred from the Richmond to that vessel. He says the Galena will probably sail first, and alone. One vessel is enough to attend to Hayti. The others belong in Haytian waters anyway, and will go there when ready, but probably they will watch San Domingo as much as Hayti. There is a revolution going on in San Domingo too, and there are Americans there.



ADMIRAL LUCE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Full and specific instructions in regard to the management of the Haytian expedition have been given to Rear Admiral Luce, commanding the North Atlantic squadron, and their execution is all that remains to be done. He is to proceed to Port au Prince and request the release of the steamer Haytien Republic, and if the authorities refuse to surrender her he is to seize the vessel by force of arms and take her to some neutral territory, where she can be restored to her owners.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Private advices are received in this city that the German steamer Cremone of the Hauson steamship line between Hamburg and Hayti put into Port au Prince, Hayti, November 20, in a sinking condition, and it is supposed that she was damaged by a Haytian gun-boat while trying to run the blockade.

TORN TO FRAGMENTS.

An Explosion of Flour-Dust Demolishes a Chicago Mill.

SEVERAL OTHER BUILDINGS DESTROYED.

Three Lives Lost—Other Fatalities Feared—An Attempt to Destroy a Distillery by Dynamite Charged to the Whisky Trust.

RUIN CAUSED BY AN EXPLOSION.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—A terrific explosion, with horrible results following it, startled the people living within a mile of Fulton and Halsted streets, where David Oliver's oatmeal mill exploded early this morning, burying the workmen and blowing down several buildings adjoining. It was just about 2 o'clock when people living in the vicinity were startled by the explosion, and almost at the same instant timbers, bricks and building materials of every description came crashing through the windows and roofs. The mill is located on Halsted street—Nos. 66 to 76—near the northwest corner of Fulton, and in it last night were employed four men. One of these is known to have escaped, and the other three were probably buried in the ruins. They were: Ernst Cooper, John Schmidt and Charles Miller. The only mill-hand known to have escaped interment in the ruins is John Holmes, who was blown out of a window. He was seriously injured, and was removed to the county hospital.

On the northwest corner of Fulton and Halsted streets stood a two-story basement and frame building occupied by Charles Murphy as a saloon and residence. Next north on Halsted stood the two-story frame wagon-shop and warehouse of Jacob Press. The next five lots were occupied by the Oliver mill, a three-story and high basement brick building facing the street and raised to four stories in the rear.

On Fulton street next to Murphy's saloon stood a large building owned by Press, the wagon manufacturer. All these buildings were totally demolished, and the people in the corner saloon building, the only building with the exception of the mill occupied by human beings, had an exceedingly narrow escape from death.

What caused the explosion could not be ascertained. Several people who claimed to have been familiar with the interior of the mill thought it was a boiler explosion, but Marshal Murphy was positive that it was an explosion of oatmeal dust and that no boiler could cause an explosion so terrific as to cover the neighboring streets several feet with debris.

The upheaval following the explosion threw the interior and walls of the mill to the south and west. An immense portion of this mass of brick and beam fell on top of the wagon warehouse and saloon to the south. These buildings were crushed like shells.

How the Murphy people escaped without harm is remarkable. There were in the building asleep Charles Murphy, the proprietor of the saloon, his father, George, his brother James, his mother and three children—Lizzie, Joe and George—10, 8 and 6 respectively. They had hardly been awakened by the report of the explosion when there came a crash that almost turned the building over on its side. The family who occupied the upper floor were thrown violently against the wall as brick and timber came crashing through the roof, crushing it in and throwing the building over so that it slanted at an angle of forty-five degrees. The entire roof immediately took fire and then commenced a fearful struggle on the part of the family to escape from the wreck. Pinned down by great beams and hemmed in on every side by debris of every sort this was found difficult. Charles Murphy seized his little boy, who was sleeping beside him, just as his aged mother came crawling into the room, half blinded by the smoke, to see if he was safe. As she saw her son and grandchild she fainted, and Mr. Murphy had to carry both his mother and son down-stairs and, after considerable difficulty, made his way to the street. The rest of the family escaped with a few bruises in a similar manner.

John Holmes, the man who was blown out of the window, was found about sixty feet away from the mill. He was lying on a pile of bricks with his face terribly mangled and his body a sickening mass of burns and bruises. He was taken to the county hospital.

Adjoining the mill at the west was a two-story frame building occupied by N. P. Lawson. The ground floor was used as a restaurant, while on the floor above lived the restaurant-keeper, his wife and baby, the cook and the waiter. The explosion threw all these people out of bed, stunning them for several seconds. When they recovered sufficiently to make an effort to escape they went to the back stairway, but it had been blown down and they were obliged to stay in the second story of the building until the firemen took them out on ladders. The restaurant was wrecked. A large hole was blown in the roof, every window in the building was shattered, the chimney was toppled over, doors forced from their hinges and the plastering shaken to dust.

George Barber, the day engineer, said that when he left the building at evening the engines and boilers were in proper condition, and he did not think that the wreck was caused by a boiler explosion.

Chief Swenie, who lives on Pierce street three-quarters of a mile south of the mill, said that the force of the explosion threw him out of bed upon his feet.

The streets near the mill were filled with men and women clad only in their nightclothes. They were shrieking and crying that there were people in the demolished building. The streets for a block in every direction were strewn with debris of every sort. There was not a whole pane of glass in any building within a quarter of a mile of the mill. Lake street for a block east and west of Halsted street was sprinkled with the glass of demolished windows. Here and there the panels of a door were blown out. And this was one of the curious features of the accident. The glass and woodwork were pushed out instead of smashed in as one would naturally expect them to be.

The detonation was heard on the South side, and the first thought there as well as elsewhere was of dynamite. The story that a bomb had been used was telephoned all over the city inside of an hour, and an Anarchistic uprising was in everybody's mind. Thousands of people awakened from their sleep by the deafening explosion hurried on enough clothing to protect them from the night air and rushed in the direction of the glare, which was so intense that it gave South-siders an impression that the whole West side was in a blaze. The streets around the shattered buildings were crowded with half-clad people, who watched the progress of the flames and talked of the horrible fate of the poor fellows in the ruins.

The loss will aggregate about $150,000. The loss on the mill, which was running day and night, is about $75,000. Jacob Press, the wagon-maker, loses about $50,000, and it is estimated that the other losses will be about $25,000.

A BOMB THROWER'S WORK.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—With a report that was heard for miles and that shattered the glass in windows for blocks around, a dynamite bomb thrown by some miscreant bent on the destruction of life and property exploded on the roof of the Schufeldt distillery, at Hawthorn avenue and Larrabee street. It was about 6:25 a. m. when the explosion occurred, and although it shocked a populous neighborhood and created the greatest excitement, the guilty man escaped in the darkness. The building which the bomb-thrower tried to destroy is a long, low structure of brick, with a flat roof extending along Hawthorn avenue about 800 feet. The roof is only about ten feet above the sidewalk, from which the bomb was evidently thrown. In the place where the infernal machine struck the roof is a hole about two feet square torn in the gravel-covered boards. Underneath is the big warehouse in which is stored 15,000 barrels of whisky, which escaped ignition by almost a miracle.

After the explosion, when the few workmen about the place had recovered from the shock, they went out on the roof, and about ten feet from the hole was found a package of dynamite. It contained seven sticks of the common dynamite, such as is used in blasting, all wrapped together in paper, around which was tied a string. The whole was again wrapped in blue cotton batting, which was tied tightly with common wrapping twine. There was a fuse about four inches long attached to each end of the package. One of the fuses had been ignited, for the end was slightly charred, but for some reason it had gone out before the fire reached the dynamite.

Not more than ten feet from this unexploded bomb was the wine-room of the distillery, containing six great casks of alcohol, each holding about 3,000 gallons. In is highly inflammable stuff, and had the bomb exploded over this room a fire which would surely have destroyed the distillery would have been the result.

Neither the police nor the distillery people have the slightest clew to the perpetrator of the outrage. Mr. J. B. Lynch, manager and one of the proprietors of the distillery, said to a reporter that he was positive that it was the work of the whisky trust, which has been fighting his company for several years.

"We are sure," said Mr. Lynch, "that it is the work of the trust. They have fought us in every way and have made threats of every kind against us. We have heard that some of the trust people said they would stop at nothing to close us up or force us into the combination."

"What reason would the trust have for destroying your place at the present time?"

"Well, there is a new house just about to start at St. Paul, with a capacity of 2,000 bushels per day. Another has just started at Pekin, Ill., with a capacity of 1,000 bushels. This will make a capacity outside of the trust, including our place, of 24,000 bushels per day. In addition to that the Kentucky distillers have changed their houses from whisky to spirit houses, so that the trust is in danger, and it will be demolished unless something is done. That, I think, was the motive for this attack on us."

Mr. J. D. Lynch, manager of the Schufeldt Company, offers a reward of $25,000 to the person who threw the dynamite on the distillery building, for the name of the man who employed him to do the work, or such information as will lead to the detection and arrest of the parties responsible for the outrage.

THOMPBRIDGE, O., Dec. 11.—A terrible explosion occurred here Monday in Strohl & Haman's feed mill. ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11.—David Fotheringham, the Adams Express messenger, who was robbed of $55,000 by Frederick Witrock in October, 1885, and who was arrested for complicity in the affair, has settled with the express company for $8,300. After the robbery Fotheringham was held a prisoner at the Southern Hotel for three weeks, and subsequently indicted and placed in jail. The trial of Witrock established the messenger's innocence. He sued for $60,000 and received a judgment for $30,000. This was cut down by the court to $12,000. The express company showed an inclination to fight further, but finally compromised on $8,300, which has been paid to Fotheringham.

A SENSATION.

The people are getting crazy over the Moxie Nerve Food. All the nervous, weakly women are talking about it because it takes that terrible tired feeling away so quickly and keeps it off on 3 cents worth of the syrup per day. It is an artificially digested nerve food only. The men are as bad, for it breaks up the effects of dissipation and overwork in a few hours and no stimulation or reaction. It is a newly discovered process of preparing the food used by the nerves, artificially, for the purpose of giving people their full complement of nerve power, when the stomach is not able to digest it for that purpose. Overworked people take enormous quantities of it. It carries neither alcohol nor alcohol.

INTERRUPTED.

That as this silken skein you wind,
You wind around my heart as well,
The thread of love's entangling spell?
Those smooth, soft hands, so dainty white—"

As you do yours, young man, I hope,
In lather made of IVORY SOAP."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

TUESDAY DECEMBER 11.

THE KING'S WAGONS.

Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

"Our Departed Still Living"—The Meeting of Jacob and Joseph in Egypt—The Journey to Our Friends in Heaven.

"Our Departed Still Living" was the subject of Dr. Talmage's recent sermon, his text being from the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth verses of the forty-fifth chapter of Genesis: "And when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob, their father, revived, and Israel said: 'It is enough; Joseph, my son, is yet alive.'" Dr. Talmage said:

The Egyptian capital was the focus of the world's wealth. In ships and barges there had been brought to it from India frankincense, and cinnamon, and ivory, and diamonds; from the north, marble and iron; from Syria, purple and silk; from Greece, some of the finest horses of the world and some of the most brilliant chariots, and from all the earth that which could best please the eye, and charm the ear, and gratify the taste. There were temples aflame with red sandstone, entered by gateways that were guarded by pillars bewildering with hieroglyphics, and wound with brazen serpents and adorned with winged creatures, their eyes and beaks and pinions glittering with precious stones. There were marble columns blooming into white flower-buds; there were stone pillars, at the top bursting into the shape of a lotus when in full bloom. Along the avenues, lined with sphinx and fane and obelisk, there were Princes who came in gorgeously upholstered palanquin, carried by servants in scarlet or elsewhere drawn by vehicles, the snow-white horses, golden-bitted and six abreast, dashing at full run. There were fountains from stone-wreathed vases climbing the ladders of the light. You would hear a bolt shove and a door of brass would open like a flash of the sun. The surrounding gardens were saturated with odors that mounted the terrace and dipped from the arbors and burned their incense in the Egyptian noon. On floors of mosaic the glories of Pharaoh were spelled out in letters of porphyry and beryl and flame. There were ornaments twisted from the wood of the tamarisk, embossed with silver breaking into foam. There were footstools made out of a single precious stone. There were beds fashioned out of a crouched lion in bronze. There were chairs spotted with the sleek hide of leopards. There were sofas footed with the claws of wild beasts and armed with the beaks of birds. As you stand on the level beach of the sea on a summer day and look either way and there are miles of breakers, white with the ocean foam, dashing shoreward, so it seemed as if the sea of the world's pomp and wealth in the Egyptian capital for miles and miles flung itself up into white breakers of marble temple, mausoleum and obelisk.

This was the place where Joseph, the shepherd boy, was called to stand next to Pharaoh in honor. What a contrast between this scene and his humble starting, and the pit into which his brothers threw him! Yet he was not forgetful of his early home; he was not ashamed of where he came from. The bishop of Mentz, descended from a wheelwright, covered his house with spokes and hammers and wheels, and the King of Sicily, in honor of his father, who was a potter, refused to drink out of any thing but an earthen vessel. So Joseph was not ashamed of his early surroundings or of his old-time father or of his brothers. When they came up from the famine-stricken land to get corn from the King's corn-crib, Joseph, instead of chiding them for the way they had maltreated and abused him, sent them back with wagons, which Pharaoh furnished, laden with corn; and old Jacob, the father, in the very same wagons, was brought back that Joseph, the son, might see him and give him a comfortable home all the rest of his days.

Well, I hear the wagons, the King's wagons, rumbling down in front of the palace. On the outside of the palace, to see the wagons go off, stands Pharaoh in royal robes, and beside him Prime Minister Joseph, with a chain of gold around his neck, and on his hand a ring given by Pharaoh to him, so that any time he wanted to stamp the royal seal upon a document he could do so. Wagon after wagon rolls on down from the palace laden with corn and meat and changes of raiment and every thing that could help a famine-struck people. One day I see aged Jacob seated in front of his house. He is possibly thinking of his absent boys (sons, however old they get, are never to a father any more than boys); and while he is seated there he sees dust arising, and he hears wagons rumbling, and he wonders what is coming now, for the whole land had been smitten with the famine and was in silence. But after awhile the wagons have come near enough, and he sees his sons on the wagons, and before they come quite up they shout: "Joseph is yet alive!" The old man faints dead away. I do not wonder at it. The boys tell the story how that the boy, the long-absent Joseph, has got to be the first man in the Egyptian palace. While they unload the wagons the wan, wasted creatures in the neighborhood come up and ask for a handful of corn, and they are satisfied.

One day the wagons are brought up, for Jacob, the old father, is about to go to see Joseph in the Egyptian palace. You know it is not a very easy thing to transplant an old tree, and Jacob has hard work to get away from the place where he has lived so long. He bids good-bye to the old place and leaves his blessing with the neighbors, and then his sons steady him while he, determined to help himself, gets into the wagon, stiff, old and decrepit. Yonder they go, Jacob and his sons, and their wives and their children—eighty-two in all—followed by herds and flocks, which the herdsmen drive along. They are going out from famine to luxuriance; they are going from a plain country home to the finest palace under the sun. Joseph, the Prime Minister, gets in his chariot and drives down to meet the old man. Joseph's charioteer holds up the horses on the one side—the dust-covered wagons of the emigrants stop on the other. Joseph, instead of waiting for his father to come, leaps out of the chariot and jumps into the emigrant's wagon, throws his arm around the old man and weeps aloud for past memories and present joy. The father, Jacob, can hardly think it is his boy. Why, the smooth brow of childhood has become a wrinkled brow, wrinkled with the cares of state, and the garb of the shepherd-boy has become a robe royally bedizened! But as the old man finds out it is actually Joseph, I see the thin lip quiver against the toothless gum as he cries out: "Now let me die, since I have seen thy face; behold, Joseph is yet alive!" The wagons roll up in front of the palace. Help out the grandchildren, and take them in out of the hot Egyptian sun. Help old Jacob out of the wagon. Send word to Pharaoh that the shepherd has come. In the royal apartment Pharaoh and Jacob meet—dignity and rusticity—the gracefulness of the court and the plain manners of the field. The King, wanting to make the old countryman at ease, and seeing how white his beard is, and how feeble his step, looks familiarly into his face, and says to the aged man: "How old art thou?" Give the old man a seat. Unload the wagons; drive out the cattle toward the pastures of Goshen. Let the slaves in scarlet kneel and wash the feet of the newly-arrived, wiping them on the finest linen of the palace. From vases of perfume let the newly-arrived be sprinkled and refreshed; let minstrels come in with sandals of crimson, and thrum the harps, and clap the cymbals, and jingle the tambourines, while we sit down at this great distance of time and space, and learn the lesson of the King's wagons.

My friends, we are in a world by sin famine-struck; but the King is in constant communication with us, His wagons coming and going perpetually; and in the rest of my discourse I will show you what the wagons bring and what they take back. In the first place, like those that came from the Egyptian palace, the King's wagons now bring us corn and meat and many changes of raiment. We are apt to think of the fields and the orchards as feeding us; but who makes the flax grow for the linen, and the wheat for the bread, and the wool on the sheep's back? Oh, I wish we could see through every grain field, by every sheep fold, under the trees of every orchard, the King's wagons. They drive up three times a day—morning, noon and night. They bring furs from the arctic, they bring fruits from the tropic, they bring bread from the temperate zone. The King looks out and He says: "There are 1,200,000,000 people to be fed and clothed. So many pounds of meat, so many barrels of flour, so many yards of cloth and linen and flannel, so many hats, so many socks, so many shoes;" enough for all, save that we who are greedy get more shoes than belong to us, and others go barefooted. None but a God could clothe and feed the world. None but a King's corn-crib could appease the world's famine. None but a King could tell how many wagons to send, and how heavily to load them, and when they are to start. They are coming over the frozen ground to-day. Do you not hear their rumbling? They will stop at noon at your table. Oh, if for a little while they should cease, hunger would come into the nations, as to Utica when Hamilcar besieged it, and as in Jerusalem when Vespasian surrounded it; and the nations would be hollow-eyed and fall upon each other in universal cannibalism, and skeleton would drop upon skeleton, and there would be no one to bury the dead, and the earth would be a field of bleached skeletons; and the birds of prey would fall dead, flock after flock, without any carcasses to devour; and the earth in silence would wheel around, one great black hearse! All life stopped because the King's wagons are stopped. Oh, thank God for bread—for bread!

I remark again that like those that came from the Egyptian palaces, the King's wagons bring us good news. Jacob had not heard from his boy for a great many years. He never thought of him but with a heartache. There was in Jacob's heart a room where lay the corpse of his unburied Joseph; and, when the wagons came, the King's wagons, and told him that Joseph was yet alive he faints dead away. Good news for Jacob! Good news for us! The King's wagons come down and tell us that our Joseph-Jesus is yet alive; that He has forgiven us because we threw Him into the pit of suffering and the dungeon of shame. He has risen from thence to stand in a palace. The Bethlehem shepherds were awakened at midnight by the rattling of the wagons that brought the tidings. Our Joseph-Jesus sends us a message of pardon, of life, of Heaven; corn for our hunger, raiment for our nakedness. Joseph-Jesus is yet alive!

I go to hunt up Jesus. I go to the village of Bethany and say: "Where does Mary live?" They say: "Yonder Mary lives." I go in. I see where she sat in the sitting-room. I go out where Martha worked in the kitchen, but I find no Jesus. I go to Pilate's court-room, and I find the judges, and the police, and the prisoner's box, but no Jesus. I go into the Arimathean cemetery; but the door is gone, and the shroud is gone, and Jesus is gone. By faith I look up to the King's palace; and behold I have found Him. Joseph-Jesus is still alive! Glorious religion, a religion made not out of death's heads, and cross-bones, and undertaker's screw-driver, but one bounding with life, and sympathy, and gladness. Joseph is yet alive!

"I know that my Redeemer lives,
What comfort this sweet sentence gives!
He lives, He lives, who once was dead,
He lives, my ever-living head.

"He lives to grant me daily breath,
He lives, and I shall conquer death,
He lives my mansion to prepare,
He lives to bring me safely there.

"He lives, all glory to His name;
He lives, my Jesus still the same.
Oh, the sweet joy this sentence gives,
I know that my Redeemer lives."

The King's wagons will after awhile unload, and they will turn around and they will go back to the palace, and I really think that you and I will go with them. The King will not leave us in this famine-struck world. The King has ordered that we be lifted into the wagons and that we go over into Goshen where there shall be pasturage for our largest flock of joy, and then we will drive up to the palace where there are glories awaiting us which will melt all the snow of Egyptian marble into forgetfulness.

I think that the King's wagons will take us up to see our lost friends. Jacob's chief anticipation was not seeing the Nile, nor of seeing the long colonnades of architectural beauty, nor of seeing the throne-room. There was a focus to all his journeyings, to all his anticipations, and that was Joseph. Well, my friends, I do not think Heaven would be worth much if our brother Jesus was not in it. If there were two Heavens—the one with all the pomp and paraphernalia of an eternal monarch, but no Christ, and the other were a plain Heaven, humbly thatched, with a few daisies in the yard, and Christ was there I would say: "Let the King's wagons take me up to the old farm-house."

If Jesus were not in Heaven there would be no music there; there would be but few people there; they would be off looking for the lost Christ, crying through the universe: "Where is Jesus? Where is Jesus?" And after they had found Him, with loving violence they would take Him and bear Him through the gates, and it would be the greatest day known in Heaven within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Jesus never went off from Heaven but once, and He was so badly treated on that excursion they will never let Him go again.

Oh, the joy of meeting our brother, Joseph-Jesus! After we have talked about Him for ten, or fifty, or seventy years, to talk with Him, and to clasp hands with the hero of the ages, not crouching as underlings in His presence, but as Jacob and Joseph, hug each other. We will want some new term by which to address Him. On earth we call Him Saviour, or Redeemer, or Friend; but when we throw our arms around Him in the everlasting embrace we will want some new name of endearment. I can think of what we shall do through the long ages of eternity; but what we shall do the first minute I can not guess. In the first flash of His countenance, in the first rush of our emotions, what we shall do I can not imagine. Oh, the overwhelming glory of the first sixty seconds in Heaven! Methinks we will just stand and look, and look, and look.

The King's wagons took Jacob up to see his lost boy, and so I really think that the King's wagons will take us up to see our lost kindred. How long is it since Joseph went out of your household? How many years is it now last Christmas, or the 14th of next month? It was a dark night when he died, and a stormy day it was at the funeral, and the clouds wept with you, and the winds sighed for the dead. The bell at Greenwood's gates rang only a few moments, but your heart has been tolling, tolling ever since. You have been under a delusion, like Jacob of old. You have thought that Joseph was dead. You put his name first in the birth record of the family Bible, and then you put it in the death record of the family Bible, and you have been deceived. Joseph is yet alive. He is more alive than you are. Of all the 1,600,000,000 of children that statisticians say have gone into the future world, there is not one of them dead, and the King's wagons will take you up to see them. You often think how glad you will be to see them. Have you never thought, my brother, my sister, how glad they will be to see you! Jacob was no more glad to see Joseph than Joseph was to see Jacob. Every time the door in Heaven opens they look to see if it is you coming in. Joseph, once standing in the palace, burst out crying when he thought of Jacob afar off. And the heaven of your little ones will not be fairly begun until you get there. All the kindnesses shown them by immortals will not make them forget you. There they are, the radiant throngs that went out from your homes. I throw a kiss to the sweet darlings. They are all well now in the palace. The crippled child has a sound foot now. A little lame child says: "Ma, will I be lame in Heaven?" "No, my darling, you won't be lame in Heaven." A little sick child says: "Ma, will I be sick in Heaven?" "No, my dear, you won't be sick in Heaven." A little blind child says: 'Ma, will I be blind in Heaven?' "No, my dear, you won't be blind in Heaven." They are all well there.

In my boyhood for some time we lived three miles from church, and on stormy days the children stayed at home, but father and mother always went to church; that was a habit they had. On those stormy Sabbaths when we stayed at home the absence of our parents seemed very much protracted, for the roads were very bad and they could not get on very fast. So we would go to the window at twelve o'clock to see if they were coming, and then we would go at half-past twelve to see if they were coming, and at a quarter to one, and then at one o'clock. After a while Mary, or David, or De Witt would shout: "The wagon's coming!" and then we would see it winding out of the woods and over the brook, and through the lane, and up in front of the old farm-house; and then we would rush out, leaving the door wide open, with many things to tell them, asking them many questions. Well, my dear brethren, I think we are, many of us, in the King's wagons, and we are on the way home. The road is very bad, and we get on slowly; but after awhile we will come winding out of the woods, and through the brook of death, and up in front of the old Heavenly homestead; and our departed kindred, who have been waiting and watching for us, will rush out through the doors and over the lawn, crying: "The wagons are coming! The King's wagons are coming!" Hark! the bell of the city hall strikes twelve. Twelve o'clock on earth, and likewise it is high noon in Heaven.

Does not the subject of to-day take the gloom out of the thoughts that would otherwise be struck through with midnight? We used to think that when we died we would have to go afoot, sagging down in the mire, and the hounds of terror might get after us, and if we got through into Heaven at all we would come in torn, and wounded, and bleeding. I remember when my tooth chattered and my knees knocked together when I heard any body talk about death; but I have come to think that the grave will be the softest bed I ever slept in, and the bottom of my feet will not be wet with the passage of the Jordan. "Them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

I was reading of Robert Southey, who said he wished he could die far away from his friends—like a dog, crawling into a corner and dying unobserved. Those were his words. Be it ours to die on a couch surrounded by loved ones, so that they, with us, may hear the glad, sweet, jubilant announcement: "The King's wagons are coming!" Hark! I hear them now. Are they coming for you or me?

Digest and be Jolly.

Did ever any one see a jolly dyspeptic? We trow not. What natural cheerfulness is proof against the almost ceaseless bodily annoyance of chronic indigestion? People whose stomachs are constantly disturbed exhibit the utmost nervousness and nervous irritability. Happily for them—since the irritable and nervous prematurely fret themselves into the grave—tranquility of the stomach and renewed good temper await them in a sure quarter, if they will but seek it. The genial stomachic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, breeds cheerfulness by insuring its essential pre-condition—easy digestion. Biliousness, too, and constipation, malevolent companions of the banished dyspepsia, vanish after a brief but steady course of the national alterative. Many a temper naturally sweet, but continuously soured by the combined attack of this trio of imps, passes the boundary of monomania. Prevent this possibility with the Bitters. Malarial fevers, rheumatism, kidney complaints, and debility are truly relieved by this standard medicine.

THE SUAKIM CAMPAIGN.

The British Government Orders Reinforcements to the Scene of the Trouble.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—In the House of Commons Hon. Edward Stanhope, Secretary of State for War, announced that the garrison at Suakim would be reinforced with a squadron of hussars and 300 Welsh infantry. This, he said, would make the effective strength of the garrison 6,500 men against 2,400 of the besieging enemy. Most of the 6,500 troops, he added, were Egyptians. Parliament will be prorogued on December 24.

SUAKIM, Dec. 11.—Deserters from the Arab camp report that Osman Digna is at Handoub with 2,000 men who will march to the support of the Arabs occupying the trenches in front of Suakim when they are attacked by the reinforced garrison. The enemy's right redoubt was nearly destroyed Monday by a heavy combined fire from the British ships and forts.

Troops Rule the Roost at Bevier.

BEVIER, Mo., Dec. 11.—Three companies of State militia arrived here Monday morning and took possession of the town. Upon the appearance of the militia the Swedes, who have been practically imprisoned for two weeks, left their stockades and laid in some supplies. Adjutant-General Jamison read the riot act to both sides and declared the town under martial law. Every thing is quiet, and will remain so until the soldiers leave, when it is believed rioting will be resumed unless a compromise of some kind is effected.

DRUNKENNESS

or the Liquor Habit Positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless, and will effect a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. For sale by FRANK SHERER, Druggist, 43 W. Special Correspondence.

MADISON, Dec. 10.—Last week Lieutenant Schevatka, the Artic explorer, lectured at the Congregational church. He was received by quite a large audience' lecture though interesting, hardly came up to the expectations of his hearers. This evening the Mendelssohn Quintette give a concert at the same place. These entertainments are given by the Congregational church, and are of great value to the students.

A WOODEN WEDDING.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. Beck Pleasantly Entertained.

The home of William Andrew on Mineral Point avenue was the scene of a very enjoyable gathering last evening. About thirty friends and neighbors met to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the wedding of Miss Hattie Andrew to Mr. A. Beck. Many appropriate testimonials bespoke the esteem in which the bride of five years was held. A novel feature of the evening's entertainment was the distributing of souvenir checks of wood, each numbered, and designating to the gentlemen the ladies whom they were to escort. Some excellent vocal and instrumental music was rendered during the evening, and card-playing occupied the remainder of the time, until well toward morning. It was an evening to be long remembered not only by Mr. and Mrs. Beck, but by all who participated.

Alimony was granted to the plaintiff in the sum of one hundred dollars a year, she being also given the household furniture and the custody of the minor child Fred J. Smith, until the further order of the court.

Ben. was urged so hard to purchase, that he passed out a dollar and took the chance. On Thursday morning, on looking over a Boston daily giving the result of the drawing, it was seen that ticket No. 46,755 had drawn the capital prize of $300,000 and as he held one-twentieth of the ticket he was thus entitled to $15,000. The ticket was given to the First Nat'l Bank for collection. Mr. Collins received the draft on a New York bank by last night's express.—Skowhegan (Me.) Reporter, Oct. 25. THE WEATHER.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 10 degrees above zero. Clear with west wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 28 degrees above zero. Clear with northwest wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 27 and 30 degrees above zero.

OUR FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Quarterly Report of Chief Engineer Blunk Presented Last Evening.

It Contains Items of Interest to Property Owners and the General Public.

Chief Engineer Henry Blunk, of the fire department, presented his quarterly report of the condition of the fire department, to the common council last evening. The report is quite lengthy, yet it is full of items of interest, especially to property owners. The item giving the cost of feed for the fire department horses will be particularly noted, as heretofore the city has paid $3 a week for what now costs $1.15 a week. His suggestions relating to a steam whistle for fire alarm purposes, the purchase of a new hook and ladder truck, and other improvements, will form topics for discussion. The full text of the report is here printed:—

To the Honorable, the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Janesville:

GENTLEMEN:—I herewith submit my report of the operations of the fire department for the quarter (three months) ending with date, and in doing this I congratulate the common council and the people of Janesville that I have no extensive or disastrous conflagration to report. Since September 3d, the date of my last report, the fire department has responded to seven (7) fire alarms, none of which resulted in any serious loss. Full particulars of each of these seven alarms are given in the "Fire Record," and will be published at the close of the year with details of other fires occurring during the year 1888.

NO ALTERATIONS REQUIRED.

There have been no changes in membership and everything in connection with the organization as ordered by the common council in August last appears to be working splendidly, giving the best satisfaction. I have no suggestions of alterations to recommend in the membership at this time.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE.

There have been many substantial improvements made during the last three months. The engine houses have been repaired, painted and thoroughly cleaned; a platform has been built or rebuilt at the west side engine house; all these improvements being done by the paid men in the department, without extra cost to the city except for material.

SOME POINTED RECOMMENDATIONS.

There yet remains several important improvements which are greatly needed, and to which I earnestly call your attention. Water service should be put in at each of the engine houses, and water guages placed thereon for the purpose of ascertaining the water pressure on the water mains; a new roof is demanded at the east side engine house and the wall near the bell tower requires some repairing; the sleeping room needs calcimining; an iron ladder should be placed on the west side engine house leading to the bell tower. These repairs and improvements, while greatly needed, will be found inexpensive, as much of the work required can be performed by the paid men in the department.

THE CONDITION OF THE APPARATUS.

We now have about five thousand feet of hose in the department. Of this 2,000 feet is in good condition and reliable; 3,000 feet is in the various stages of unreliability, some of which should be condemned. With the paid men in the department our hose is receiving much better care than under the old organization, and I do not anticipate a necessity for the purchase of new hose for some time—not within the next year or two.

The hose carriages are in good condition, notwithstanding the constant use in exercising the horses. The looks of the carriages would be much improved by a coat of varnish.

THE SWINGING HARNESS.

The swinging harness have been in service now a sufficient time to demonstrate the wisdom of their purchase. This is one of the most useful and convenient improvements made in our department; it not only saves much valuable time in responding to fire alarms, but is a great relief to the horses.

The five horses now owned by the city are in good condition.

WORK OF THE FIRE ALARM.

The fire alarm telegraph has now been in use about one year and has proved a great service to the department. Of the thirty-one alarms given during the year twenty-nine have been transmitted by the fire alarm system to the fire department and not one mistake has been registered. There have been seven malicious false alarms sent in during the year, and two or three prosecutions of persons for tampering with the alarm boxes. I recommend the purchase of an additional box for each ward, believing the purchase can be made at this time without impairment of the fire and water fund.

SIXTEEN CENTS A DAY FOR HORSE FEED.

On the first of last September, under instructions of the common council, I commenced the purchase of feed for the horses in the fire department, the council placing funds in the hands of the city treasurer to be expended on my order for this purpose, and requiring the chief engineer to include in his quarterly report a statement of his expenses on this account. In compliance with this order I submit the following statement of the disbursements since September first last to date: I have purchased the following supplies and drawn on the city treasurer for pay of same:

198 1-4 bushels of oats	$ 46 01
10,270 pounds of hay	45 51
Salt	1 25
Bran	3 39
Total expense	$100 10

I estimate feed on hand (in kind) sufficient to subsist the horses until January first.

On this basis it will cost about $16½ cents a day for feed for each horse; $1.15 a week, $59.80 a year. The horses have all been given as much hay and grain in quantity as their attendants thought proper, and are in good condition. This new arrangement will prove a great saving in expense to the city, as $3 a week for board of each horse was paid prior to September last.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE NOW PENDING

for the purchase of a new hook and ladder truck with modern equipments, but the negotiations are subject entirely to the sale of one of our steam fire engines. It is now clearly settled that an engine cannot be traded to the manufacturer in payment for a new truck, and that the city cannot realize anything near the value of an engine in such a trade were it possible to make an exchange.

SELLING THE OLD ENGINES.

Henry O. Morris, chief engineer of the fire department of Pueblo, Colorado, was in the city a day or two ago and called on me, stating that his city desired to purchase a steam fire engine. I gave him an opportunity to thoroughly examine both of our engines, and he appeared very well pleased with them. He desired to know the lowest cash price the city would accept for one engine. I could not inform him. I would recommend that the council fix a price on each one of the engines, and that the city clerk be directed to issue a circular and send one to every village in the west—not supplied and not having water works, and place one of the engines on the market.

WAYS AND MEANS.

I would also urgently recommend the purchase of a second size hook and ladder truck with modern equipments, and that the order be placed at once. Our present truck is of scarcely any use in the department, hardly worth the expense of keeping it in the service. In order to bring this matter of purchasing a new truck and equipments more clearly before the council, I have examined the condition of the fire and water fund and find that on December 1st there was a balance on hand of $9,019.15. I here give an estimate and statement of the amounts liable to be drawn from this fund up to May first as follows:—

Salaries of men	$1,400 00
Horse feed	100 00
Coal	108 00
Lights	108 00
Incidental expenses	200 00
Hydrant rental, six months	2,000 00
Total	$4,080 00

Leaving a balance on hand May 1st, of $4,924.

I estimate the direct expense of a new truck and equipments, as follows:

Two horses	$ 300 00
Swinging harness	90 00
Engine house repairs	100 00
New truck	2,000 00
Total	$3,090 00

Leaving a balance in the fire and water fund on the first day of May, after paying for the truck and equipments and other estimated liabilities, of $1,853.00.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT ORGANIZATION.

In making amendments to the city charter this winter I would suggest the repeal of Chapter 242, Laws of 1857, relating to the incorporation of the fire department of the city of Janesville. The purpose of that organization ended with the substitution of a paid department for the volunteer system.

THE STEAM WHISTLE ALARM.

I have had a conversation with the engineer at the water works pumping station, and believe that satisfactory arrangements can be made for giving fire alarms by means of a steam whistle, allowing the engineer to use his own judgment when and how long to sound the whistle in giving alarms. This would be more satisfactory to the general public than any bell which the city could procure.

THE FIRE HYDRANTS.

We now have 180 double fire hydrants located on 13 miles of main water pipe, laid on various streets of the city. I have prepared a brief table giving the streets upon which pipes are laid in each ward; together with the exact location of each one of the fire hydrants. I would ask permission to have this table printed in a handy little folder for the benefit and information of members of the fire department. The expense would be but little, while the information would be of lasting benefit to members of the department, enabling them to find a hydrant in the dark or in times of deep snow or snow-drifts.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY BLUNK,
Chief Engineer.
Janesville, Wis., Dec. 10, 1888.

MAIDS OF ALL NATIONS.

They Bring to Bower City People Glimpses of Foreign Lands.

Apollo Hall Bright With the Sights of Russia's National Festival.

Out from the covered entrance of Apollo Hall strode a sturdy young Turk with trousers of a width to excite envy in the heart of every fashionable youth. Behind him followed Russians, Greeks, Japanese, Italians, Germans, Persians, Normandy girls, gypsies, Jews and Spaniards. It was a motley array, but it was a most attractive one for among those in line were many of Janesville's fairest daughters. Around the hall they went in stately circuit. Then, as they reached their starting point, the word of command was given, there was a gleam of national flags, the line broke into groups surrounding each color-bearer, and the representatives of Europe and the Orient turned to their respective booths. Janesville's fair of Nijni Novgorod was formally opened.

It was some time ago that ladies of Christ church in discussing church fairs in general, and the church fairs of the coming winter in particular, decided to seek for an idea in foreign lands. They went abroad. When they returned they had been swept into the whirl of current fashion—a fashion in which Russia held sway. They were devoted to all that the land of the white czar had sent forth, and it was the Russian National fair that they took as a guide for their coming entainment.

That when the fair opened it was a revelation is needless to say. Many times Apollo Hall has been gay with bunting and drapery, but never has it presented a more attractive appearance than on last evening. All the decorations of the hall were in keeping with the occasion. Booths arranged along three sides carried out the idea of a "fair of all nations", and in each booth the nationality was carefully preserved.

After the money changer's bench, in charge of Miss Minnie Jones and Miss Kittie Bennett, the first booth was that of Russia. Here those who ruled were Misses Minnie Bennett, Annie Prichard, Lizzie Harris and Annie Pitcher; furs took the place of drapery and Russian tea formed the staple beverage.

At the German booth, as a matter of course, the staple refection was the heart-warming and soul-satisfying pretzel. It was Franlein Von Hamburger herself who dealt out the Teutonic dainty, and only on careful inspection was the disguise penetrated, and Mrs. Ed. F. Carpenter revealed. Mrs. Carpenter was aided by Misses Williams, Bailey, Ott and Stouffer, who did their full share toward making Germany's representation a creditable one.

In the Persian and Italian booths that stood side by side all the tales of dark-eyed southern beauty found full corroboration, and the impression given by the picturesque groups was only heightened by the back-ground of oriental scarfs and drapery. In the Persian booth the sale of confections and fancy goods was carried on by Mrs. Victor P. Richardson, and Misses Marie Roger, Mary Richardson and Belle Winslow. In the Italian booth were many bits of ware from Venetian workmen, and patrons were received by Misses Fanne Bostwick, Kittie Nichols and Lou Nichols.

"I heal all wounds save those of love," read the inscription on a silk court-plaster case that hung from the front of the French booth, while just inside was an embroidered mitten that seemed to say that if love's wounds were to be healed, it would be by heroic treatment. The decorations of the French booth were decidedly appropriate, clouds of clinging white forming a ground-work over which were drawn folds of light blue and pink. The booth was presided over by Misses Jessie Jackman, Fannie Vankirk, Mabel Jackman and Nan Moulter each in the cap and costume of the French peasant girl.

The Greek booth, which was in charge of Misses May Baldwin, Stella Ashcraft Sarah Richardson and Maud McKinney, dealt with ancient as well as modern times. A bit of frieze from the Parthenon formed the front, busts of Achilles and Ajax, smiles blandly down upon the array of fancy goods, and the lantern of Digenes blinked questioningly at the tub in which the venerable Greek philosopher was once supposed to have resided.

The attraction at the Japanese booth was of a different order Excepting for the graceful decorations and the smiling young ladies who dispensed tea, almond-eyed dolls, paper lanterns and fans, the most interesting features were the laundry-ticket inscriptions by that eminent Japanese scholar Rob. M. Bostwick The booth was in charge of Mrs. W. F. Williams, Mrs. Williams being assisted by Misses Allie Beimstreet, Fannie Warren and Louise Winkley.

Last but not least was the Gypsy booth in charge of Mesdames Greenman and Nichols. The booth was very tastefully arranged and seemed a favorite resort.

Of all the departments, however, none were better patronized than the refreshment tables in charge of Miss Clara Judd. Miss Judd had for assistants Misses Eva and Ray Bostwick, Alice Ruger and May Stevens, and a tempting repast was served.

To mention all the details of the evening's entertainment, the strolling musicians, the fish pond, and the other centers of attraction, would be impossible. The fair is to be in progress this evening and to-morrow evening, and all will have an opportunity to see for themselves.
